MANAGEMENT

As the Group continued to expand its business segments in a swift manner, its core team was growing a lot bigger than it used to be. According to its existing development strategy, the Group adjusted its internal management structure in order to streamline the information dissemination within the corporation, and enable effective enforcement of the Group’s decisions. Meanwhile, efforts were enhanced in training newly-recruited employees to enable them to quickly grasp our corporate culture, and secure the rapid and steady development of the Group.

OUTLOOK AND PROSPECTS

Development of APA technology, which is positioned in the upstream along the IT industry chain, is able to promote the development of intelligence terminal technology and increase production value of the industry by a few dozen times. Our Board of Directors believe that along with China’s and the world’s rapid development in information technology and intelligence technology, strong market demand for APA products will sustain in future. In particular, as the Chinese government implemented its policies of stimulating domestic demand and encouraging priority purchase of proprietary products locally made by domestic enterprises, there will be more market opportunities and room for profit growth for the Group.

15 years of development has translated into the Group’s extensive experience as a subcontractor for R&D as well as advanced-process-automation product manufacturing projects. Given the opportunities generated by the PRC’s continual promotion of the information industry, the Group will innovate and develop on a proprietary basis to explore a brand-new landscape for the advanced process automation sector. In response to the tremendously large market of advanced process automation, the Group will take full advantage of opportunities in the industry to ensure that it will supply the market with products under proprietary intellectual property rights and with high added values.
