§6 Report of the Board of Directors

6.1 Business review in the reporting period

6.1.1 Business review

In 2010, the Chinese government accelerated the transformation of economic development pattern and structural adjustment, and realized relatively rapid economic growth with GDP growing by 10.3% year on year. Domestic demand for refined oil and chemical products grew steadily. The Company continued to monitor market developments and made every effort to capture this growth by expanding market, reinforcing fine management and improving its operational structure according to the market conditions. These changes enabled the Company to realize good financial results.

6.1.1.1 Review of Market Environment

(1) Crude oil market

International crude oil prices fluctuated within an upward range between USD70/barrel to USD95/barrel in 2010. The annual average Platts global spot price for Brent crude oil was USD79.47/barrel, representing a year-on-year increase of 29.2%. The price trends of domestic crude oil are in line with international markets. In 2010, the Chinese government adjusted the benchmark wellhead price for domestic onshore natural gas and carried out a reform of oil and gas resource tax in western provinces and cities.

(2) Refined oil products market

In 2010, domestic demand for refined oil products maintained relatively fast increase. Domestic oil product supply was sufficient at the beginning of the year, but became tight in the latter half, particularly in the fourth quarter due to strong demand for diesel. According to official statistics, the domestic apparent consumption of oil products throughout the year (including gasoline, diesel and kerosene) reached 230 million tonnes, a year-on-year increase of 11.4%.

(3) Chemicals market

The domestic demand for chemical products in the first quarter of 2010 extended the recovery trends seen in 2009, remained steady in the second quarter, and saw strong growth in the latter half of the year. According to the Company's statistics, the domestic apparent consumption of synthetic resin, synthetic fiber and synthetic rubber saw a year-on-year increase of 9.4%, 12.9% and 11.8% respectively, while the domestic apparent consumption of ethylene equivalent increased by 11.8% year on year to 29.87 million tonnes. Domestic chemical product prices bottomed in the second quarter and rallied gradually later in the year.

6.1.1.2 Production and Operation

(1) Exploration and Production

The Company further implemented its oil and gas resource strategy in 2010. In exploration, we enhanced integrated geological research, increased exploration investment, optimized exploration scheme, promoted the integration of exploration and development, consolidated the resource basis and intensified reserve traps. New discoveries were made following the exploration of Tarim Basin's Maigaiti Slope, Tahe Oilfield and Jiyang Depression. The marine-facies natural gas exploration in southeast and west Sichuan made further progress. The Company completed 23,483 kilometers of 2D seismic and 6,373 square kilometers of 3D seismic, and drilled 621 exploration wells with 1,774 kilometers of footage in China throughout the year. In development, the Company focused on enhancing reserve development ratio, oil recovery rate and single-well output. We also intensified our efforts in making technological breakthroughs and capacity building, and stably increased oil and gas production. The Sichuan-East China Gas Transmission Project has been running smoothly since it was put into operation, with a substantial increase in production of natural gas. Material progress was achieved in the Company's expansion into overseas upstream business.

(2) Refining

In 2010, the Company adhered to the market-oriented principle, strived to adjust product mix, and operated refining facilities at high load. We enhanced the optimization of resources, operation and management, and spared no efforts in reducing costs and improving efficiency. The Company successfully started up the upgrading and expanding projects and completed the company-wide gasoline quality upgrading for GB III Standard. The Company, based on changes in the market, timely adjusted the product mix, increased the output of jet fuel and light chemical feedstock, and enhanced the marketing efforts for asphalt, LPG and petroleum coke. Facing a sudden tight supply of diesel in some regions in the fourth quarter, we effectively eased the market tension by making every effort to increase diesel production. In 2010, refinery throughput amounted to 211 million tonnes, representing a year-on-year increase of 13.2%, and 124 million tonnes of oil products were produced up by 9.4% over the previous year.

In the new year, Sinopec Corp. will continue to implement the scientific development outlook, enhance fine management, actively adjust structure, substantially explore the market, improve economic benefits and strive for new achievements in production and operation to make a good start for the 12th Five-Year Plan period.

RISK FACTORS

In the course of its production and operations, Sinopec Corp. actively takes various measures to avoid operational risks. However, in practice, it is not possible to prevent the occurrence of all risks and uncertainties below.

Variation in economic situation: The operating results of the Company are closely related to the economic situation of China and the world. Although global economy is on track of recovery after the financial crisis, it has not yet entered into a virtuous circle featured by stability and growth. The business of the Company may be adversely affected by such factors as the impact on export due to trade protectionism of some countries, impact on import which is likely to be resulted from regional trade agreements and etc..

Cyclical effects: The majority of the operational income of the Company comes from the sales of refined oil products and petrochemical products, and part of the operation and its related products are cyclic and are sensitive to macro-economy, cyclic changes of regional and global economy, the changes of the production capacity and output, demand of consumers, prices and supply of the raw materials, as well as prices and supply of the alternative products etc. Although the Company is an integrated energy and chemicals company, it can only counteract the adverse influences of periodicity of the industry to some extent.

Macroeconomic policies and government regulation: Although the government is gradually liberalizing the market entry regulations on petroleum and petrochemicals sector, the petroleum and petrochemical industries in China are still subject to entry regulations to a certain degree, which include: issuing crude oil and natural gas production license, setting the upper limit for retail prices of gasoline, diesel and other oil products, the imposing of the special oil income levy, formulation of import and export quotas and procedures, formulation of safety, quality and environmental protection standards; meanwhile, the changes in Macroeconomic and industry policies such as: further improvement in pricing mechanism of refined oil products, reforming and improvement in pricing mechanism of natural gas, and reforming in resource tax and environmental tax. Such regulations may have material effect on the operations and profitability of the Company.

Change of environmental legal requirements: Our production activities generate waste water, gas and solid. The Company has built up supporting effluent treatment systems to prevent and reduce pollution. The relevant government authorities may issue and implement stricter environmental protection laws and regulations, adopt stricter environment protection standards. Under the aforesaid situation, the Company may incur more expenses in relation to the environment protection accordingly.

Uncertainties with additional oil and gas reserves: The Company's ability to achieve sustainable development is dependent to a certain extent on our ability in discovering or acquiring additional oil and natural gas reserves. To obtain additional oil and natural gas reserves the Company faces inherent risks associated with exploration and development and/or with acquiring activities. The Company has to invest a large amount of money with no guarantee of certainty. If the Company fails to acquire additional reserves through further exploration and development or acquisition activities, the oil and natural gas reserves and production of the Company will decline over time which will adversely affect the Company's financial situation and operational performance.

External purchase of crude oil: A significant amount of the Company's demand for crude oil is satisfied through external purchases. In recent years, especially impacted by the international financial crisis, the crude oil prices are subject to wild fluctuations, and the supply of crude oil may even be interrupted due to major incidents. Although the Company has taken flexible counter measures, it may not fully shield from risks associated with any wild fluctuation of international crude oil prices and disruption of supply of crude oil.

Operational risks and natural disasters: The process of petroleum chemical production is exposed to risks of inflammation, explosion and environmental pollution and is vulnerable to natural disasters. Such contingencies may cause serious impact to the society, grievous injuries to people and major financial losses to the Company. The Company has implemented a strict HSE management system, in an effort to avoid such risks as much as possible. Meanwhile, the main assets and inventories of the Company have been insured. However, such measures may not shield the Company from financial losses or adverse impact resulting from such contingencies.

Investment risk: Petroleum and chemical sector is a capital intensive industry. Although the Company adopted a prudent investment strategy and conducted rigorous feasibility study on each investment project, certain investment risk may exist resulting that expected returns may not be achieved due to major changes in factors such as market environment, prices of equipment and raw materials, and construction period during the implementation of the projects.

Currency risk: At present, China implements an administered floating exchange rate regime based on market supply and demand which is regulated with reference to a basket of currencies in terms of the exchange rate of RMB. As the Company outsources a significant portion of crude oil in foreign currency which are based on US dollar-denominated prices, fluctuations in the value of Renminbi against US dollars and certain other foreign currencies may affect our purchasing costs of crude oil.
