MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

BUSINESS REVIEW

The Group announces that it recorded a profit attributable to equity holders of approximately HK$437,000 for the Interim Period (for the six months ended 30 June 2021: HK$33,255,000).

During the Interim Period, the Group recorded a substantial decline in financial results, which was mainly attributable to, among other factors, the adverse market conditions caused by the outbreak of the fifth wave of the COVID-19 pandemic in Hong Kong since January 2022, which led to a significant drop in the transaction value and volume of the non-residential properties in Hong Kong.

Legend Credit Limited (“Legend Credit”), the money lending unit of the Group, recorded an increase in profit. In addition, the property investment portfolio also recorded a gain in net income as the occupancy rate of the existing properties improved and the newly acquired properties began to contribute rental income.

Weak First Half Impeded Industry Development

In early 2022, the outbreak of the Omicron variant led to the implementation of the toughest social-distancing measures by the HKSAR government since the onset of the pandemic. Economic activities in Hong Kong came to a standstill. At the same time, the recovering economy of Mainland China was also affected by the pandemic. Worse still, interest rate hikes triggered by the fear of worldwide inflation and the Russo-Ukraine conflict weighed heavily on the already weak market. In the view of the internal concerns and external issues, the local economy and the property market were significantly impacted. The registration volume for non-residential properties in the first half of 2022 fell by 23.1% as compared with the corresponding period in 2021 to around 7,847 units.

In order to stimulate the Hong Kong economy, the government relaxed the COVID-19 prevention measures in April and re-launched the Consumption Voucher Scheme, which helped to provide a strong boost to the local retail market. Local retail sales in April increased substantially by 26.9% as compared with that in March, but its performance declined slightly in May. As the local economy was far from full recovery, the anticipated “revenge spending” of Hong Kong people did not take place. Despite a strong increase in food and beverage spending after the relaxation of the COVID-19 prevention measures, it was not enough to bring the retail sector back to its heyday. The retail sector was still struggling as the number of tourist arrivals continued to be affected due to Hong Kong’s strict quarantine measures, which also drastically reduced the number of transactions in the office sector. Many multinational companies have decided to relocate their senior staff to other Asian regions, for instance, Singapore. The number of registration of offices recorded a 38.7% drop in the first half of 2022, as compared with the corresponding period in 2021. For the industrial sector, which has always been supported by investors, transaction activities were hit by the interest rate hikes in the US. According to the figures from the Land Registry, only 1,567 sales registrations of industrial properties were recorded in the first half of 2022, representing a decline of 21.2% as compared with that in the corresponding period in 2021.

OUTLOOK

Local Market Still Faces Challenges

For the macroeconomic environment, the geopolitical frictions, the surging inflation, the weakened consumer confidence, the uncertainties of the pace of increase in interest rates and the shrinking of global liquidity resulting from tightening policies may negatively impact the global and local economy.

In Mainland China, its economy performed well during the initial phase of the pandemic, however, it has also been affected by the fifth wave of the pandemic and has to face challenges such as infection prevention restrictions and inflation. Recently, homeowners in the Mainland China started the “mortgage boycott” campaign on unfinished properties, which might dent the confidence of homebuyers in pre-sales of uncompleted properties. Nevertheless, the long-term impact of this incident on the overall property market is unlikely to be significant.

In Hong Kong, the brain drain caused by a new wave of emigration and the departure of foreign professionals prompted by the tight quarantine requirements have posed challenges to multinational companies in recruitment and retention, thus in effect undermining the role of Hong Kong as an international financial centre. This in particular has adversely affected the office sector. Furthermore, as the pandemic is still raging and there is no time-table for the reopening of the border between Hong Kong and Mainland China, it would be difficult for the retail sector to fully recover without the support of Mainland tourists. As inflation intensifies, it is believed that local retail sales will continue to suffer. US interest rate hikes will further dampen investment sentiment, dragging down the performance of the industrial sector.

Gradual Relaxation of COVID-19 Prevention Measures

In the near term, the central government is expected to launch more economic stimulating policies. The reduction of the lending rate in mid-August by the People's Bank of China is perhaps just the first step. In long run, it is expected that the GDP of Mainland China will continue to grow when the impacts of the economic stimulus gradually kick in. Furthermore, Mainland China plans to build a high-standard market system that is unified and open with orderly competition to provide potential growth to the future economic development. Mainland China occupies an important position in the world market, while Hong Kong is still the most important international capital market that acts as a gateway for foreign capital to enter Mainland China. Therefore, it is still attractive to the foreign institutions to set up their operations in Hong Kong.

The Group is confident about Hong Kong's prospects. This year marks the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region. During President Xi Jinping's visit to Hong Kong in July 2022, he stated that Hong Kong should continue to maintain its uniqueness. It is generally believed that the new term of government will bring the focus of Hong Kong to its economic development. Moreover, the government announced that starting from 12 August, inbound persons from overseas places or Taiwan will be subject to quarantine under the "3+4" model instead of the previous seven-day quarantine. Visitors who are not infected can go out during the four-day medical surveillance period. This new measure has added greater flexibility for visitors and lowered their costs. This move is thought to be the government's preparation for allowing inbound visitors to conditionally enter Hong Kong without quarantine in November. At present, the government is actively pursuing the Global Financial Leaders' Investment Summit to be held in November, which is believed to further strengthen Hong Kong's position as an international financial centre and to improve its property sales and rental markets.

In addition, the rollout of the Consumption Voucher Scheme (phase II) in August, together with the "Hong Kong Sevens" to be held in November, will benefit the retail sector and transactions of shops may drive up in the second half of 2022.

Diversification Strategy Bears Fruit Name Change Boosts Business

During the Interim Period, both money lending and property investment businesses managed to register an increase in profit, indicating that the diversification strategy has continued to pay off, and helped to offset the financial loss of the Group in the first half of 2022.

Furthermore, the Group has changed the English name of the Company from "Midland IC&I Limited" to "Legend Upstar Holdings Limited" and the Chinese name of the Company from "美聯工商舖有限公司" to "駿聯控股有限公司". The Group believes that this change will better reflect the Group's different principal business activities, corporate structure, strategic business plan and future development direction, and will benefit the future business development of the Group. Currently, the Group is principally engaged in the provision of property agency services in respect of commercial and industrial properties and shops, properties investment, credit business and securities investment in Hong Kong.
