For the twelve months ended 31 December 2023 (the “Reporting Period”), notwithstanding the influence of unfavorable factors in the complex and volatile domestic and overseas environment, the Group still achieved a year-on-year increment in revenue (excluding the effect of exchange rate on such revenue increment and the revenue growth rates shown in this announcement) of over 15%. Such increase was principally attributable to:

- (i) market share of independent listed subsidiaries of the Group increased further and rapid growth in their sales revenues were achieved, driven by the launch of new products and commercialization promotion. Among which, revenue from Shanghai MicroPort Endovascular MedTech (Group) Co., Ltd.* (endovascular and peripheral vascular devices business) (“EV MedTech”) grew year-on-year by over 32%, revenue from MicroPort NeuroTech Limited* (neurovascular business) (“MicroPort NeuroTech”) grew year-on-year by approximately 22%, revenue from MicroPort CardioFlow Medtech Corporation* (heart valve business) (“CardioFlow Medtech”) grew year-on-year by approximately 31% to 36%, and revenue from Shanghai MicroPort MedBot (Group) Co., Ltd. - (ii) other major businesses within the Group has further consolidated their competitive advantages and achieved a steady growth in revenue;
- (iii) as commercialization continued to make progress, revenue from emerging businesses recorded an exponential growth.

During the Reporting Period, the Group was estimated to record losses of not greater than USD580 million (as compared to losses for last year of approximately USD588.1 million) due to the improved profitability brought about by the significant increase in revenue from the Group's major businesses, as well as the Group's proactive implementation of resource focus and cost control measures to continuously improve operational efficiency and profitability. The net loss excluding one-time and/or non-cash provisions and losses was not greater than US$436.0 million (as compared to the net losses excluding the one-off and/or non-cash provisions and losses for last year of approximately USD502.5 million), representing a year-on-year decrease over 13%. The abovementioned one-time and/or non-cash provisions and losses mainly includes impairment losses on equity-accounted investees and goodwill, share-based payment compensation and interest costs on preferred shares issued by subsidiaries.

In the future, the Group will continue to pay high attention to the health of its financial position and the adequacy of its cash flow, and endeavor to significantly reduce its losses and achieve breakeven in the coming years by focusing on its business, increasing its revenue and lowering the expenses such as research and development.
