VOLUNTARY ANNOUNCEMENT THE FIRST EXPORT OF SELF-PRODUCED IRRADIATION EQUIPMENT BY CIRC TO THE LATIN AMERICAN MARKET

This announcement is voluntarily made by China Isotope & Radiation Corporation (“CIRC” or the “Company”) to keep its shareholders and potential investors informed of the latest business developments of the Company.

The board of directors (the “Board”) of the Company is pleased to announce that, on 17 November 2025, local time, CIRC, officially signed a contract with a Peruvian client in Lima for the Agricultural Gamma Irradiation Station Project.

Pursuant to the agreement, CIRC will provide professional gamma irradiation devices and supply a complete solution for the supporting cobalt sources for irradiation purpose. Upon completion, the project will primarily be used for the irradiation treatment of agricultural products, aiming to improve sterilization levels, extend product shelf life, and further enhance the export quality and market competitiveness of Peruvian specialty agricultural products. As a “small yet sophisticated” nuclear technology application project along the “Belt and Road Initiative” aiming to promote cooperation for people’s livelihood, this irradiation station represents an active response to the “Atoms for Food” initiative proposed by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) and plays a positive role in promoting food security and sustainable agricultural development.

Implementation of the project is expected to further deepen the pragmatic cooperation between China and Peru in the field of nuclear technology application and create new opportunities for China’s nuclear technology to “go global”.
