PROSPECTS

In 2026, geopolitical conflicts in the Middle East triggered a surge in global oil prices and a resurgence of inflation, exerting a severe negative impact on the global economic recovery; several central banks shifted towards tightening, US dollar assets strengthened, and exchange rate pressure on emerging markets increased. In Q1 2026, the Chinese economy got off to a good start, with strong external demand, a recovery in investment, and a rebound in consumption, although insufficient domestic demand and external uncertainties remain underlying concerns. It is expected that in the first year of the “15th Five-Year Plan”, domestic macroeconomic policies will be more proactive and effective in hedging against external risks and boosting domestic demand. Facing numerous uncertainties, we will continue to adhere to our development strategy of “seeking progress amidst stability, improving quality and increasing efficiency”, focus on the stable development of our core business, and ensure that the risks are preventable and controllable, to continue to create long-term value for stakeholders.

The Group will continue to concentrate resources on extending the water resources segment into higher value-added areas, promoting the transformation and upgrading of our business structure. We will continuously optimize various asset portfolios and resource allocation, and proactively seize potential development opportunities arising from the “Outline Development Plan for the Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macao Greater Bay Area”. We will actively monitor investment, merger and acquisition opportunities in relevant markets, striving to achieve new breakthroughs in profit growth and further enhance the Company’s operational performance and overall value.
