From January to October 2026, the year-on-year increase in oil product sales was mainly due to the lower base resulting from the shutdown of coal-to-liquid production facilities for process upgrading and modification in the same period last year. The year-on-year increase in methanol sales was mainly due to the increase in production resulting from the optimization and adjustment of methanol production processes, and adjustments to production and sales based on market demand and price changes. The year-on-year increase in ethylene glycol sales was mainly due to the increase in production resulting from the optimization and adjustment of ethylene glycol production processes, and the lower base affected by factors such as equipment maintenance and the phased shutdown of the ethylene glycol production facilities for catalyst replacement in the same period last year.

The major operational data above was calculated based on the internal statistics of the Company. Operational data may show major differences from month to month. The factors giving rise to such differences include, among others, changes in weather, equipment overhaul, seasonal factors and safety inspection.
